OFFICE Los Angeles

Andrew Bledsoe focuses his practice on complex civil and intellectual property litigation. He brings years of experience as a patent litigator from two different AmLaw 100 firms to the Larson team.

Andrew represents clients in a range of technical industries, including telecommunications, electronics, and pharmaceuticals. His experience includes litigating patent infringement actions involving streaming services and content distribution networks, web mapping and navigation applications, televisions, and anticancer and rheumatoid arthritis treatments under the Hatch-Waxman Act. Andrew has experience litigating in district courts across the country and the Federal Circuit.

Prior to joining Larson, Andrew worked in an academic research laboratory studying the effects of Interleukin-6 (IL-6) on adrenal androgen release. He also served as an extern for the U.S. District Court for the Central District of California and the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of California.
