OFFICE Washington, D.C.

Matthew Beckwith is an experienced litigator whose practice is focused on white collar defense and government investigations.

Prior to joining Larson, Matthew served as an Assistant United States Attorney in the U.S. Attorney's office for Washington, D.C. Matt handled matters at all stages of litigation as an AUSA, conducting investigations in conjunction with federal law enforcement agents and successfully taking multiple cases to trial. He also spent two years as an associate at a global Am Law 100 firm, where he advised clients facing federal and state investigations on non-profit tax compliance, counseled a software manufacturer on regulatory obligations related to autonomous vehicles, and provided guidance on international sanctions.
